Have you ever thought, why Chinese Medicine had never developed as developed as the west? Why Chinese Medicine never included into the Olympic Games? Sometimes Western scientists think Chinese Medicine and Chiropractic are.... The commonest and the most serious problem in our society today is mental illness. Most of the mental illnesses are born out of stress. Stress is a potent factor in the development of mental illness in our society. The problem is our society's stress. We are... Recent Posts Science Hijacked! Science is twisted up, twisted and strung into knots, turned upside down, spindled, gangbanged and and things I can't even begin to think about even if I tried. Rather than inspiring wonder and awe, science seems to instill terror among the educated, the literate, the highly-educated, and the generally rational. After all, Darwin, Einstein, Hubble, Newton, Freud, DNA, and IQ are some of the top scientists in the world. In their quest to generate wealth, scientists frequently partner with corporate and government interests to play fast and loose with science. Scientists are sometimes viewed as gods; a handful of "scientists" make decisions, dictate fashions, and promulgate new dogma that determines what we may and may not say and do. The real world isn't quite as neat and tidy as it might seem, and often it is messy, complicated, and very human. Sometimes good science is done, sometimes bad science is done, and sometimes science is used to accomplish good things and sometimes bad things. The good news is that science and scientific progress is a beautiful thing, and progress has been happening at an astonishing pace since the early nineteenth century. Scientism is the unthinking elevation of science to the place of "the ultimate judge of all things." Theoretical scientists often reinforce the idea that science is an absolute, compelling authority when science is simply the path that leads to the truth. Science offers valuable
