LEMON: So what's this guy doing? He goes home -- he lives in the suburbs -- but he goes home and he listens to this speaker. And we heard this during the trial. It's the same speaker. It's the same thing that Hastert's lawyer, John Kass, played to the jury. GREENE: Right. LEMON: The same speaker he gets home, listens to this, and he did this with thousands of people in his job. And he was careful enough, and prosecutors are the professionals, not to act on it but he eventually tips off D.E. Hastert.Q: What is the longest lasting range of flashlight?
